DULLES IS MOCKEDIzvestia Calls Him Scapegoat
for C. I. A. Failures

MOSCOW, Sept. 28 (AP)—The newspaper Izvestia described Allen W. Dulles Thursday night as the scapegoat for failures of the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

An editorial said that Mr. Dulles, who is retiring as head of the agency, had fed American leaders tranquilizing pills while the Soviet Union forged ahead.

Among the failures listed by Izvestia were the launching of the first Soviet satellite, the U-2 "air spy project" and the abortive Cuban rebel invasion last April.

"The man who all his life let loose goats in other people's gardens has himself become a scapegoat," Izvestia said. "Of course it is unpleasant to become a whipping boy at 70, but it cannot be helped."
